ACHING BODIES

Monday, July 5, 2021 to Thursday, August 5, 2021

»I often visualize topics by examining them through the image and celebration of the human body. We see bodies in their relationship to space, each other, and the world they inhabit. At times fragmented, at times united, the human form twists melts, breaks, or contorts. My work aims to capture quiet moments of intimacy through striking imagery.«

Andrea Ihl is an illustrator and digital artist based in Aachen, Germany. In her work she explores the joys and frustrations of everyday lives while focusing on themes of vulnerability, gender, psychology and various social issues. Through the use of bold compositions and contrasting colours, the illustrations stand out and aim to make you reflect on the subject matter. Andrea is currently studying Communication Design at the University of Applied Sciences, Aachen. Though she is self-taught, her studies gave many opportunities for experimental exploration of her art style in various design fields. Now, she is particularly experienced in editorial work and is constantly supporting as well as initiating cultural and social projects.
